

Tips on Photography Bad Habits

Compiled by Bob Spalding

Crooked Horizon

There are a lot of bad photography habits out there and while some are worse than others, sometimes there are habits you have that you may not even know are bad until someone makes you aware of it. There are so many aspects of photography that you may have a deficit in your knowledge base that is holding you back or you may just be doing something that is inefficient.

Not checking your equipment before leaving on a photo shoot (is your battery charged)
Or failing to check your camera setting before the shoot

Centering your subject
Need to consider use the Rule of Thirds

Fixing a photo in Post
Instead of getting it right in the field

Not doing boarder control

Sleeping late and missing that good early light

Letting dust get onto to your camera sensor

